

Executive Biography

Nathan Hurst

Chief Sustainability & Social Impact Officer, HP

Nate Hurst drives HP's Sustainable Impact programs that are aligned with HP's business strategy. He leads a global team of experts focused on driving solutions in collaboration with non-profit organizations, governments, customers and partners. His team reinvents sustainable solutions that address societal challenges with regards to the planet, people and communities while using HP's technology.

Hurst has 20 years of professional experience in environmental sustainability and social innovation working in the private, public, and non-profit sectors. Previously, he served as director of sustainability, public affairs, and government relations for Walmart where he executed a proactive internal and external business sustainability strategy on environmental issues.

As a national spokesperson for The Ocean Conservancy, he spearheaded big ideas, communications strategies, and goals for environmental advocacy and advanced policy agendas through grassroots campaigns.

Prior, he served on The White House Council on Environmental Quality for President Clinton. While at the White House, he helped develop the Administration's environmental agenda and implemented an extensive outreach plan in support of the agenda.

His international experience includes representing the United States government as a member of many official delegations.

Hurst received his master's degrees from the University of California – Berkeley and his bachelor's degree from Virginia Tech University.

He serves in several leadership positions including: the Haas Center for Responsible Business Alumni Board, Global Citizen Advisory Board, UN Women Global Innovation Coalition for Change member, the Youth Skills and Innovation Initiative member, the Earth Day Network Board of Directors, the Keystone Policy Center Board of Trustees, and the After-School All-Stars DC Chapter Board.